

Enterprise Village of San Diego, Junior Achievement

Junior Achievement is a worldwide organization dedicated to teaching children financial literacy, civic responsibility, career options and free enterprise. The 10,000-square-foot facility has 20 shops on two floors, including radio and TV stations and a newspaper. They are equipped with computers, telephones, office furniture and informational exhibits. The Jack in the Box comes with a working cash register, a computer screen that displays pending orders, a popcorn maker and a refrigerator full of sodas.

CLIENT:
Enterprise Village of San Diego

LOCATION:
San Diego,
California

COST:
$7.8 million

SIZE:
10,000 square feet

ARCHITECTURE TEAM
Principal in Charge:
Kotaro Nakamura, AIA

PROJECT PARTICIPANTS
Architect of Record:
Roesling Nakamura Terada Architects

Owner:
Enterprise Village of San Diego
Marion Paul, Executive Vice President
(619)682-5155

